

Privacy Policy

Your privacy is important to Law of the Rockies. When you contact us through our web site, we collect, retain, and use your information solely for the purposes of evaluating your matter and whether to represent you, providing legal services to you in the event we agree to represent you, administering your account, protecting your records and funds, complying with applicable state and federal laws, and helping us to design and enhance our services and technology so that we can provide you with superior client service and support. To protect your personal information, we take reasonable precautions and follow industry standards to make sure it is not inappropriately lost, misused, accessed, disclosed, altered or destroyed.

We do not license, sell, rent, trade, or otherwise disclose personally identifiable information about you or your accounts to third parties unless you request or authorize the disclosure or the information is provided to complete a transaction that you initiate.

In general, the third-party providers used by us will only collect, use and disclose your information to the extent necessary to allow them to perform the services they provide to us, and in no event will any disclosure of information to a third-party provider conflict with our obligations of confidentiality to you. Once you leave our Firm's website or are redirected to a third-party website or application, you are no longer governed by this Privacy Policy or our website's Terms of Service.

We reserve the right to modify this privacy policy at any time. Changes and clarifications will take effect immediately upon their posting on the website.
